Marketing Strategy: Social Media Planning

Social media is not really an option - are you ready to dive in?

Internet has changed—and continues to change—the way companies do business. So do what it takes with a marketing firm that stays ahead of the curve... one that not only embraces changes, but also takes the time to understand the trends and how to effectively use new mediums.

The key to social media is the word "social." It's a two-way street in terms of communication, which means you need someone from your company—or from your outsourced marketing department like PMG—to monitor the communication, engage with current and potential clients, and constantly provide content that people will find relevant and useful. Not an easy task. But it gets a whole lot easier when you work with us.

PMG, our social media planning includes items like:

- Launching your company blog and providing editorial feedback when necessary
- Creating a Twitter plan and helping you understand how to leverage this growing medium
- Improving the way your LinkedIn profile works for you—and your company
- Showing you how to create an effective Facebook fan page for your company
- Integrating your social media plan into your overall website development and Internet marketing strategy
- Plus so much more!

Many affiliate managers focus on growing an affiliate program without understanding how your publishers generate traffic. Leadqual believes that your program is only successful if your publishers are delivering quality traffic. We call this the "building your revenue with cookie-stuffers and brand-bidders is bad" approach. In other words, we work to cultivate relationships with quality publishers.
